

Creating a Ranger Station Employee Handbook

Information Technology XV Ethical and Legal Issues: Describe, analyze, develop, and follow policies for managing ethical and legal issues in organizations and in a technology based society.

Essential Question: How does an organization create a policy and procedure employee handbook that incorporates legal and ethical issues?

An employee handbook is an important communication tool between you and your employees. A well-written handbook sets forth your expectations for your employees, and describes what they can expect from your company. It also should describe your legal obligations as an employer, and your employees' rights. This guide will help you write an employee handbook, which typically includes the topics below.

Assignment:

Each student will complete a job description for the position you held last year with the Ranger Station. Create the job description in a google doc and place the doc named with your name and title of job For example, "Accountant, Diaz"

In addition to the job description you will work in groups to complete the sections below focusing on The Ranger Station and Vending.

You will use Google Docs to create an employee handbook. Use ALL the job descriptions shared in the google doc folder, You may use your own Code of Conduct or use a different one that your classmates created.

I will share pictures and the logo and slogan for you to use in the book.

This project will be an assessment grade worth 100 points. Be sure to share your document with Mrs. Jenkins

You will receive 10 points for each section, 5 points for incorporating our logo and slogan and pictures, and

*5 additional points for including other permanent information you find through independent research that should go into our employee handbook.

1. Code of Conduct

A document that describes specifically how a company's employees should respond to different situations. See Texas Instrument's example.

<http://www.ti.com/lit/ml/szza066a/szza066a.pdf>

Document your expectations of how you want your employees to conduct themselves including dress code and ethics. In addition, remind your employees of their legal obligations.

2. Anti-Discrimination Policies

As a business owner, you must comply with the equal employment opportunity laws prohibiting discrimination and harassment, including Affirmative Action Plan and/or Americans with Disabilities Act. Employee handbooks should include a section about these laws, and how your employees are expected to comply. Compensation

3. Work Schedules

Describe your company's policies regarding work hours and schedules, attendance, punctuality and reporting absences. *Be sure to include absence policy "If you are going to be absent for any reason you must email Mrs. Jenkins AND the GM and Assistant GM before your shift. Failure to do so will result in a zero for participation that day."

4. General Employment Information- GM, Shift Manager, Marketing, Accounting, Merchandisers, Cashiers/Customer Service

Your employee handbook should include an overview of your business and general employment policies covering employment eligibility, job descriptions, discipline policy, and probation policy. (See example of job description.)

5. Non-Disclosure Agreements (NDAs) and Conflict of Interest Statements

Although NDAs are not legally required, having employees sign NDAs and conflict of interest statements helps to protect your trade secrets and company proprietary information. (Be sure there's a line for employees to sign they understand and agree)

6. Safety and Security

Describe your company's policy for creating a safe and secure workplace, including compliance with the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's laws that require employees to report all accidents, injuries, potential safety hazards, safety suggestions and health and safety related issues to management.

Safety policies should also include your company's policy regarding bad weather and hazardous community conditions.

Add your commitment to creating a secure work environment, and your employee's responsibility for abiding by all physical and information security policies, such as being careful with the handling of money- never having only one person with money, etc...

7. Computers and Technology

Outline policies for appropriate computer and software use, and steps employees should take to secure electronic information, especially accounting information including revenue and profits. Include the handling of iPads and use of Paypal Register, our new technology piece we will be incorporating this year to offer debit card transactions and inventory control.

8. Consumer Bill of Rights

Describe the rights our customers have when dealing with our business.

9. Acknowledgement Page for Supervisor and Employee signature and date
